Foundation

Everyone has heard of the Covid-19 pandemic, but have you thought that whilst the pandemic has been with us, there are tens of thousands of Australians living with other chronic health conditions and within that group, approximately 1,200 Australians waiting for a kidney transplant alone, let alone others waiting for a variety of other organ transplants to be able to survive.

Some must wait years and others will never receive the chance. Living kidney donation from a loved one or friend or even a random person (especially through the pair-exchange program), is one of life's greatest gifts. However, Australia's rate of living donations has decreased significantly over the past 10 years. Of course, living donations only apply to kidney donations. Deceased donations can cover a number of organ transplant requirements (eg heart, lungs, skin, corneas, liver).

As you may be aware, Brett & Jodie Barton and their family have recently lived this experience throughout the period of the pandemic with Jodie receiving a kidney from Brett under the unexpected outcome that he was the chosen donor for her after twelve months of extensive testing. Jodie was thankful that she had four other generous people who were willing to go through the testing process to be a donor for her. They fully realised that they were in the minority, and that most people requiring a kidney transplant may have only one potential living donor, and if they do not qualify, then the patient is placed on the deceased donor list that could take years for the transplant to occur.

On 1 August 2022, Barton Commercial Property will launch an 80-day pledge-donation period to support Transplant Australia, in conjunction with the NORTH Foundation culminating on 20 October 2022 with The Second Chance Charity Golf Cup.

This will be held at the Queanbeyan Golf Club, Queanbeyan NSW.

An urgent education program is required for more Australians to consider being a living donor or register on the deceased donor list. All funds raised will be shared between the two organisations towards developing education programs for potential living donors and recipients, as well as helping those on dialysis who must navigate the complex pathway until transplant.

Both groups who have to wait for a transplant and potential donors are often in the dark on options for donations. For some, living donations may be their only option.
